E-Voice

Greetings from the SAS

Welcome to the October edition of the E-Voice! Check out all the events happening around the province this month.

Stay tuned to our website and social media pages for information on archaeological happenings in the province and across the world. Each week we feature a Saskatchewan archaeological site on our #TBT "Throwback Thursdays" and archaeology and food posts on our #FoodieFridays! See our "TrappersandTradersTuesdays" to learn more about the fur trade card game!

Want to stop by to chat and check out what's new? Drop-In Tuesdays resumes on October 29th, 2019 from 1:30 - 3:30 pm!

PRINCE ALBERT'S OLDEST BUILDINGS NEED A HOME.

The Prince Albert Historical Society wants to reconstruct the Nisbet Church and the Blockhouse along the riverbank west of the Historical Museum. These buildings are some of the oldest in Saskatchewan and the oldest in Prince Albert. Built of local dove-tailed, hewn square logs, the buildings are simple and practical and reflect the look of Prince Albert in its earliest days.

The Church was built by Rev. James Nisbet who, after consulting with the local Indigenous people, chose this area for his Presbyterian Mission in 1866. Nisbet was accompanied by Métis missionaries, George Flett and John McKay and their wives and families. Nisbet was also a carpenter and erected the log structure as a combined school and church in 1872. His mission focused on providing education and agriculture as well as religious instruction.

The Blockhouse was originally constructed as a stable for William Maclise, Prince Albert's first lawyer, who arrived here in 1881. During the 1885 conflict with the Métis that took place in the Batoche area this building became a blockhouse, a place of defense which could also house military equipment. Gun slits were cut into the walls and the building formed part of the fortifications around the Presbyterian Church and manse surrounded by walls of piled cordwood.

To accomplish the task of reconstructing these buildings on the river bank the Historical Society needs to raise $200,000. This will pay for concrete flooring, new roofs, and some new logs to replace those rotten from age. The Historical Society will operate the two buildings in the summer season with programming and displays that reflect their separate functions. The church will be available for small wedding ceremonies as well.

"Your donation is crucial to this plan and any amount is welcome"

You are the foundation and the protection - purchase a roof or concrete pad for a donation of $10,000 or more

Let in the light and welcome visitors - purchase a door or window with a donation of between $5000 and $10,000

Your dovetailed log links together with others - purchase a log for $1000 to $5000 chinking and all donations of $20 or more will be issued a tax receipt.

We thank you all for your help with this project that we think will bring back a piece of our history to where Prince Albert began on the riverbank.

Please call 306-764-2992 for more information

Folks can donate directly to the Historical Society or by visiting our GoFundMe page.

Pottery Workshop

Saturday, November 16th, 2019

9:00 am - 4:00 pm

Wanuskewin Heritage Park, Saskatoon, SK

With Dr. Jill Taylor-Hollings

Dr. Jill Taylor-Hollings, a Postdoctoral Fellow at Lakehead University, will share some of her stories about archaeology, sites, and traditional Indigenous pottery techniques. The group will craft their own pot to take home using traditional methods of construction from the past.

Refreshments provided;
please bring your own lunch!

Maximum registration is 20 participants.

For more information and to register,

Saskatoon: La Rábida (until October 2019) - Wanuskewin Heritage Park

La Rábida is a Franciscan monastery overlooking the mouth of the Rio Tinto near the small town of Palos de la Frontera on the Atlantic coast of Spain. Christopher Columbus set sail from this place in August 1492 confident he would find a new route to Asia. He landed instead on an island in the Caribbean Sea. The cultural confrontation that followed his landing is the inspiration and subject of this exhibition. The development of La Rábida, Soul of Conquest: an Anishinaabe encounter began in 2015 and 2016, when artist Bonnie Devine visited Spain intending to examine the legacy of Columbus from an Indigenous perspective. Her research evolved into a broader investigation of the religious justification for the seizure of land and the subjugation of Indigenous populations in the Americas when she Buen Gobierno by Guáman Poma from 1615, and the current town seal of Whitesboro, New York, among others, Devine documents the enduring impact of the Columbus landing in painting, drawing, video, sculpture and an original commissioned choral work by David DeLeary. This exhibition comes at a pivotal time when public and government attention is focused on the Truth and Reconciliation process. Devine's work in La Rábida draws on a repository of historic documents, monuments, and texts that report the violence and injustice of colonialism. The practice of truth telling is not new – some of the accounts cited in Devine's exhibition date from as early as the era of initial contact. That these accounts are publicly accessible, yet largely ignored in dominant historical narratives reveals how easily power structures are maintained. Devine presents these documents with a stark honesty that lays bare the ongoing insidious effects of colonization.

Saskatoon: An Evening with Candace Savage (October 3rd, 2019, 7:00 pm) - Le Relais Community Hall (308-4th Avenue North)

*Join Candace Savage for the launch of Strangers in the House: A Prairie Story of Bigotry and Belonging. McNally Robinson Booksellers and Greystone Books are pleased to co-present this free, public event at Le Relais Community Hall-Fédération des Francophones de Saskatoon, 308 4th Ave North. When researching the first occupant of her home in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, award-winning writer Candace Savage discovers a family more fascinating and heartbreaking than she ever expected. Napoléon Sureau dit Blondin built the house in the 1920s, an era when French-speakers like him were deemed “undesirable” by the political and social elite, who sought to populate the Canadian prairies with WASPs only. In an atmosphere poisoned first by the Orange Order and then by the Ku Klux Klan,* interviews several of Napoléon's descendants, including his youngest son, to reveal a family story marked by challenge and resilience. In the process, she examines a troubling episode in Canadian history, one with surprising relevance today. Candace Savage is the author of several bestselling, award-winning books. She is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada and, in 1994, was inducted into the Honor Roll of the Rachel Carson Institute, Chatham College, in Pittsburgh. She shares her time between Eastend and Saskatoon, Saskatchewan.

Saskatoon: A Conversation with Jessica McDiarmid (October 9th, 2019, 7:00 pm) - McNally

Robinson Booksellers (3130 8th Street East)

In-conversation with Darlene R. Okemaysim-Sicotte and signing Highway of Tears: A True Story of Racism, Indifference, and the Pursuit of Justice for Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls (Doubleday Canada). This event is co-presented by Iskwewuk E-wichiwitochik (Women Walking Together). For decades, Indigenous women and girls have gone missing or been found murdered along an isolated stretch of highway in northwestern British Columbia. The highway is known as the Highway of Tears, and it has come to symbolize a national crisis. Journalist Jessica McDiarmid meticulously investigates the devastating effect these tragedies have had on the families of the victims and their communities, and how systemic racism and indifference has created a climate where Indigenous women and girls are over-policed, yet under-protected. Through interviews with those closest to the victims--mothers and fathers, siblings and friends -- McDiarmid provides an intimate, first-hand account of their loss and unflagging fight for justice. Examining the historically fraught social and cultural tensions between settlers and Indigenous peoples in the region, McDiarmid links these cases to others across Canada -- now estimated to number up to 4,000 -- contextualizing them within a broader examination of the undervaluing of Indigenous lives in the country. Highway of Tears is a piercing exploration of our ongoing failure to provide justice for missing and murdered Indigenous women and girls, and testament to their families and communities' unwavering determination to find it. Jessica McDiarmid is a Canadian journalist who has worked across North America and Africa. She has written for the Associated Press, the Toronto Star, CBC, IPS Africa and The Harvard Review, among other publications, and trains local journalists through her work with Journalists for Human Rights. McDiarmid grew up near the Highway of Tears and currently lives in British Columbia. This is her first book. Find her online and on Twitter: @jessmcdiarmid Iskwewuk E-wichiwitochik (Women Walking Together) is a network of concerned citizens – activists, academics, grass roots people and organizations from the province of Saskatchewan who came together in 2005, out of concern for the lack of attention given to cases of missing Aboriginal women in Saskatchewan and Canada. The group focuses its efforts on raising awareness of systemic violence against women through education and political action. They remain committed to the broader goal of social justice and peace, by providing moral and direct support to families of missing Aboriginal women, collaboration with organizations in the prevention of violence against women and paying tribute to missing individuals.

Saskatoon: Wicihitowin Indigenous Engagement Conference (October 16th and 17th, 2019, 5:00 pm) - TCU Place (35-22nd Street East)

Wicihitowin is Cree/Saulteaux term for “helping each other” or “working together”, which is an important component of delivering enhanced programs and services within an organization, government or community setting. Now in its fifth year, the Wicihitowin Indigenous Engagement Conference is commemorating the children that never made it home and is paying respect to the survivors of the Indian residential schools, Indian day schools, missing and murdered Indigenous women and girls, and the sixties scoop, by recognizing that they were, and continue to be, seeds for change. Nationally respected, the late Elder Walter Linklater shared many universal teachings that continue to help guide people on a path to reconciliation. To honour him, his teaching of ‘being a good person and trying to live a good life’ inspires the theme of this year’s conference. The conference will focus on: Supporting the Truth and Reconciliation Commission’s Calls to Action by working towards respectful Indigenous engagement and inclusion in community settings, Highlighting the work and experiences of survivors, Indigenous leaders, educators, community members, and youth, as they related to the TRC’s Calls to Action, Honouring the survivors of the residential school system and sixties scoop, Focusing on issues concerning Indigenous engagement and human service delivery issues relevant to Indigenous and non-Indigenous participants, and Providing organizations, levels of government and businesses with an opportunity to learn about inclusive representation of Indigenous people as employees, volunteers and decision-makers. Saskatoon: Saskatchewan Doukhobor Living Book Project (until October 20th, 2019) - 2610 Lorne Avenue

120 years ago the Doukhobors became one of the first settler groups in Saskatchewan, when over 7,500 first settled here in 1899 after fleeing religious persecution in Russia. The "Saskatchewan Doukhobor Living Book Project" is a collaboration between Spirit Wrestler Productions (Ryan Androsoff), the University of Saskatchewan, and the Western Development Museum to explore the history and evolution of the Doukhobor community in Saskatchewan. The project consists of three components: an exhibit about the history of the Saskatchewan Doukhobors; the immersive Spirit Wrestler Soundscape that allows visitors to experience how Doukhobors in Saskatchewan practice their faith and their unique style of choral singing through an audio/visual recreation of a 'Moleniye' (prayer service); and a documentary film that captures the oral history of Doukhobor community in Saskatchewan.
